Under the Public Information Act, some categories of information do not have to be disclosed. Information that is exempt from disclosure falls into two general categories: 1) mandatory exceptions that mandate a governmental body to withhold information, and 2) discretionary exceptions that allow a governmental body to withhold information. You may find information about mandatory and discretionary exceptions here.

In most instances, a governmental body is required to request a decision from the Attorney General in order to withhold information from a requestor. However, a requestor may permit a governmental body to redact information without requesting an Attorney General decision. You are not required to accept the redaction of any information responsive to your request, but doing so may limit your request. If you agree to redactions in this request, then you may request a future information request.

Do you agree to the redaction or withholding of information that is subject to mandatory exceptions, provided such actions are clearly labeled on the information withheld?
